OVERVIEW

IOM's Camp Coordination and Camp Management (CCCM) programme works closely with local authorities, civil society, and site management teams to enhance dignified living conditions in Collective Centres hosting displaced persons. This is achieved by strengthening local capacity, coordinating multi-sectoral service provision based on needs assessment, providing cash grants, and fostering social cohesion. In 2023, IOM developed the Pathways to Solutions strategy, alongside UNHCR, with the objective of finding medium and longer-term solutions for Internally Displaced Persons (IDPs), mostly located in the Western and Central regions. These areas are often deprioritized for humanitarian assistance due to their distance from the front line. Through an area-based approach, IOM's CCCM identifies sustainable solutions for residents by addressing barriers to accessing housing, livelihoods, basic services, and other elements crucial for their integration into communities. CCCM will continue emergency support to Collective Centres located in the Eastern and Southern regions, which host new evacuees.

LEARNING A NEW SKILL IN A NEW PLACE

Before the escalation, Svitlana lived 40 km from Bakhmut and worked at a thermal power station. But for the past two years, she and her family have been living in Kalush, Ivano-Frankivsk region, as she cannot to return home due to hostilities. Unable to find work, Svitlana decided to learn a new skill and sewed her first suit at a sewing space, created by IOM in the centre, where Svitlana lives.

“It’s hard to sit around and do nothing. It’s important to create spaces where people can express themselves. It allows you to distract yourself, and new skills can become a source of additional income,” explains Svitlana.

IOM supported the Collective Centre where Svitlana and 40 other displaced people live, with new furniture and modern sewing machines, as well as a cash grant for essential items.

With funding from USAID’s Bureau for Humanitarian Assistance USAID Ukraine - USAID Україна, IOM provided a cash grant to 20 Collective Centres in Ivano-Frankivsk region, covering the cost of fuel, new windows, doors, and other winterization items to ensure decent living conditions for displaced people.
